STANFORD NON-LAW STUDENT COURSE REGISTRATION:  For important Law School enrollment deadlines, see the Law School Academic Calendar at http://www.law.stanford.edu/calendar. Many law courses are open to qualified graduate students in other departments of Stanford University with the consent of the instructor. Some law courses have special enrollment instructions and restrictions. You can view detailed course descriptions on the Stanford Law School, Office of the Registrar web site at http://lawreg.stanford.edu/ or see Detailed Class Descriptions under Information for Current Students on the Law School web site at http://www.law.stanford.edu/. The course descriptions will include days, times, and location prior to the start of the term. Non-Law students may not enroll in the first-year required courses.

HOW TO REGISTER FOR A LAW COURSE:

1. Review the course listings at http://lawreg.stanford.edu/. Some courses have limited enrollment. Law students receive preference in these types of courses. Thus, there are fewer vacancies for Non-Law students. A few limited enrollment courses reserve openings for Non-Law students. See course description for details.

2. Obtain the instructor's approval to enroll in the course, submit the completed form with an approval signature from the instructor or an email approval to the Office of the Law School Registrar in room 100 or submit by fax to 650.723.8234 or by email to registrar@law.stanford.edu. The form must be submitted by the appropriate enrollment deadlines.

3. You will receive an email notification from the Law School Registrar’s Office, Registrar’s staff. We will let you know whether we have enrolled you in the course to your study list via Axess. The notification may take a couple days. In the meantime, please keep attending the course.

4. Courses are offered for the number of units that are listed in the course description. A course that is listed in the course description as being offered for three units can only be taken for three units. “Unit shaving” is not allowed. Courses offered for a range of units (e.g., 2 or 3) can be taken for the number of units chosen by the student from the range listed in the course description.

If you have any questions, please contact the Office of the Law School Registrar at (650) 723-0994 or email registrar@law.stanford.edu.
